

Aaron Norris

Aaron Norris is the vice president of The Norris Group which specializes in California and Florida hard money lending, note investments, and real estate investor resources. He often speaks and writes on topics such as technology and its effects on real estate (robotics, artificial intelligence, zero interface, shared economy, fintech, etc) and investor-related topics. Aaron also co-hosts and produces The Norris Group Real Estate Radio Show as well as "I Survived Real Estate," which has now raised over $850,000 for charity. He has been directly involved in raising over $2 million for local charities and is passionate about helping people discover and thrive in real estate. Aaron has his MBA from UC Irvine, and is also a Certified Specialist in Planned Giving (CSPG), a California real estate broker, and California and Florida mortgage lender. His side hustles include real estate rentals, notes and the arts.
